3 次の英文は，明夫（Akio）が，日本と外国の川について，表（table）とグラフ（graph）を作り，英語の授業の時間に発表したときのものです。1～3の問いに答えなさい。

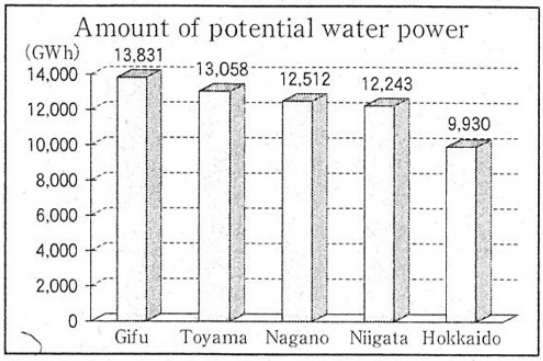

Hello, everyone. Today, I would like to talk to you about rivers. Last week, we learned about the rivers in Japan and in some foreign countries. After that, I got interested in rivers and I found some information about them on the Internet. Then I made a table and a graph.

First, look at this table. This table shows the length of each river and the altitude of its headwaters. Can you see that these two rivers in Japan, the Shinano and the Nagara, are much [①] than the Nile and the Mississippi? Can you also see that these two Japanese rivers start running at [②] places than the two rivers in foreign countries? Can you tell which of these four rivers starts running at the [③] place? It is the Shinano. When these two Japanese rivers are compared with these two rivers in foreign countries, don't you think that Japanese rivers seem to be shorter and steeper?

Table

	River's name	Length of river (km)	Altitude of headwaters (m)
Japan	the Shinano	367	2,475
	the Nagara	166	1,709
Foreign countries	the Nile	6,695	1,134
	the Mississippi	3,765	450

Graph

After I made the table, I got an idea. Japanese short and steep rivers may be able to produce energy because they run very fast.

Now, look at the graph. This graph shows five prefectures with the largest amount of potential water power in Japan. Potential water power is a water resource that can be used to produce energy now and in the future. If we find some good ways of using potential water power, I think we can produce clean energy. But we must not forget that we should not do damage to the environment.

I am proud of Gifu because Gifu has the largest amount of potential water power in Japan. I want to find how to use potential water power in Gifu (④w　　) doing damage to the environment.

(注) length：長さ　altitude of headwaters：源流の高度　the Shinano：信濃川　the Nagara：長良川　the Nile：ナイル川　the Mississippi：ミシシッピ川　amount：量　potential water power：包蔵水力　GWh：ギガワット時(電力量の単位)　seem to ～：～だと思われる　steep：(角度が)急な　produce：産み出す　energy：エネルギー　prefecture：都道府県　water resource：水資源　do damage：損害を与える

1　本文中の [①] ～ [③] に入る英語の組み合わせとして最も適切なものを，次のア～エの中から一つ選び，その符号を書きなさい。

ア　①—shorter　②—lower　③—highest　　イ　①—shorter　②—higher　③—highest ウ　①—shorter　②—higher　③—lowest　　エ　①—longer　②—higher　③—highest

2　本文中の(④　　)に入れるのに最も適切な英語を，1語書きなさい。ただし，(　　)内に示されている文字で書き始め，その文字も含めて答えること。

3　本文の内容に合っているものを，次のア～エの中から一つ選び，その符号を書きなさい。

ア　Akio shows that the Nagara is the longest of the four rivers in the table.
イ　Akio believes Hokkaido has a larger amount of potential water power than Gifu.
ウ　Akio says that all rivers in foreign countries seem to be short and steep.
エ　Akio thinks clean energy can be produced by using potential water power.

4 健（Ken）の通う中学校の英語の授業では，写真を見せながら説明し合う活動をしています。次の英文は，健がその活動で発表したときのものです。1～7の問いに答えなさい。

Please look at this picture①. You can see four kinds of birds in this picture. I'm sure that everyone knows these birds and their names in Japanese. But can you say what each bird is called in English? The biggest white bird is a 'swan' and this smaller white one is a 'dove'. Then this black bird is a 'crow' and the smallest bird is a 'swallow'.

In this picture, which kind of bird do you like the best? I think most of you will choose swans because they are very beautiful on a lake. Many of you will say doves are your favorite birds because they are well known as a symbol of peace. Or some of you may like crows because they are very clever. Me? I like swallows the best. Today I'm going to tell you why I like swallows.

Before talking about swallows, I want to ask you one question. Have you ever heard of 'migratory birds'? Migratory birds are birds which travel from one part of the world to another according to the seasons every year. Actually swallows and swans are migratory birds. As you know, swans can be seen only in fall and winter in Japan. They leave Japan and fly north in spring. But crows and doves are not migratory birds because (②).

All right, now I'll tell you why I like swallows.

First, swallows are very strong. The average size of an adult swallow is about 17 cm. Swallows are very small but their flight speed is sometimes more than 200 km per hour. Most swallows which come to Japan usually stay in warmer countries during winter, for example, the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia. That means the swallows have to fly more than 2,000 km to come to Japan and another 2,000 km to travel to other countries in one year. Don't you think swallows are very strong?

Second, swallows are very smart. I have read one book about swallows. It says swallows usually come back to the same nests every year. Just imagine! Can you go to a foreign country by yourself without getting lost? Swallows don't have a map or a tour-guide. But they remember the places they once visited and can return to the same nests. I don't know how swallows can find their way to the same nests when they fly back to Japan from other countries. I believe swallows have many special abilities that we don't have. I think one of their abilities has something to do with the sun. Do you remember how the sky changed during the eclipse of the sun some years ago? It got dark suddenly like the night sky. Then the swallows in the nest at my house became panicked③ and started chirping very loudly. I guess they noticed something strange was happening to the sun.

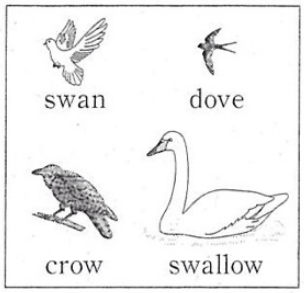

Third, adult swallows work very hard for their family. Is there a swallow's nest at your house? If so, please watch your swallows for a few weeks very carefully. You'll see how hard they work. Before having baby birds, adult swallows try to build a nest for their family from morning to evening. After they lay eggs, they try to keep the eggs warm all day. After baby birds come out of the eggs, adult swallows work hard to take care of their baby birds. They clean the nest, feed their baby birds and protect them from other birds like crows. When baby birds grow up, (④). That's an important job for adult swallows because baby birds need to fly well to get food alone after leaving their nests. Adult swallows work really hard. Don't you agree?

Actually, there are still many mysteries about swallows. So I want to go to college to learn more about swallows and find the answers to the mysteries.

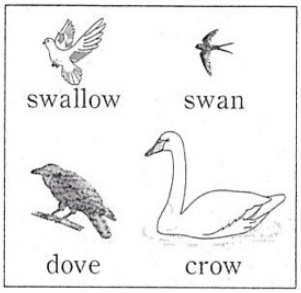

(注) symbol：シンボル　according to ～：～によって　average：平均的な　adult：おとな
per ～：～につき　the Philippines：フィリピン　Malaysia：マレーシア

(5)　これから読む英文は，留学生のケイト（ Kate ）が英語の授業でスピーチをしたときのものです。ケイトの話の内容に合っているものはどれでしょう。

Hello, everyone. I'd like to make a speech about softball. I have been interested in it since I was very young. But I didn't have a chance to play it in Canada. So I joined a softball club here in Japan and played it for one year. I could not play it well at first, but my Japanese friend Tomoko helped me a lot. Finally I was able to play in a big game with Tomoko. The most important thing I learned from playing softball is to keep practicing hard with my friends. Thank you for listening.

放送を聞いて答える問題２

これから読む英文は，中学生の恵子（ Keiko ）が，グリーン先生（ Mr. Green ）と話をしているときのものです。この英文を聞いて，(1)，(2)の問いに答えなさい。なお，英文は２回読みます。

英文を聞く前に，まず，(1)，(2)の問いを読みなさい。

では，始めます。

Keiko : Hello, Mr. Green.

Mr. Green : Hello, Keiko. You don't look happy today. What happened?

Keiko : Well, I don't know what I should do at our school festival.

Mr. Green : Oh, I hear that some students from Australia will come to Gifu to learn Japanese culture next month. They will also visit our school and your classmates will do something to welcome them at the school festival, right?

Keiko : Yes. My friend Akiko likes cooking very much, so she will cook Japanese food for them. Maki plays the piano very well, so she is going to play Japanese music for them. They both look very excited. But I can't cook or play the piano.

Mr. Green : Well, Keiko. You are different from your friends. I'm sure you can do something special.

Keiko : What do you mean, Mr. Green?

Mr. Green : Do you remember? When I first came to this school, I didn't know about this school at all. Then you showed me around the school. You explained the school to me in English. Your English was really good. Thanks to you, I was not worried about starting a new life here.

Keiko : Really?

Mr. Green : Yes. You helped me a lot. So, how about doing the same thing for them?

Keiko : That's a good idea. Oh, I can also make a school map for the festival in English. Then they can enjoy the school festival much more when I show them around the school. What do you think, Mr. Green?

Mr. Green : I think that's a great plan. Now you have found something you can do to welcome them.

Keiko : Thank you very much, Mr. Green. I'm so happy now. I'm looking forward to our school festival.
