3 次の英文は，朝美(Asami)が，留学について，英語の授業で発表したときのものです。1～3の問いに答えなさい。

Are you interested in studying abroad? I want to study abroad when I become a high school student. For me, the main reason for studying abroad was to learn English. However, when I did some research about studying abroad, I found that the people in other countries have many different ideas about studying abroad. Today I will talk about which countries people want to visit to study abroad and why they want to study abroad.

First, look at the table. This shows which country the high school students in Japan, America and China want to visit to study abroad the most. You can see the Japanese students chose America, Australia and the U.K. Both the American and the Chinese students chose the U.K. and France. For the American students, the most (① p　　) country is Italy. Like the Japanese students, the Chinese students chose America the most.

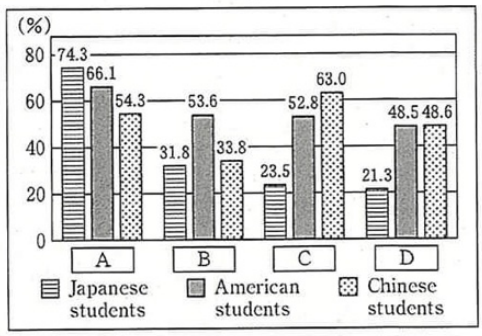

Next, look at the graph. This shows why the high school students in Japan, America and China want to study abroad. You can see more than 65% of the Japanese and the American students chose "To learn a foreign language". However, the Chinese students chose "To get advanced knowledge" more than "To learn a foreign language". And the percentage of the American students who chose "To make friends" is the highest among the three countries. Also, the percentage of the American students who chose "To get a better job in the future" is as high as the percentage of the Chinese students.

I found that many Japanese students want to learn a foreign language like me. On the other hand, I learned that the American and the Chinese students have different ways of thinking. Now I know other reasons to study abroad. By studying abroad, I can grow in many ways. So I look forward to studying abroad in high school.

Table

	Japanese students	American students	Chinese students
First	America	Italy	America
Second	Australia	the U.K.	the U.K.
Third	the U.K.	France	France

※グラフは，複数回答が可能な調査の結果から作成している。

1 本文中の(① p　　)に入る最も適切な英語を，1語書きなさい。ただし，(　　)内に示されている文字で書き始め，その文字も含めて答えること。

2 Graph の [D] に入る最も適切なものを，ア～エから1つ選び，符号で書きなさい。

ア To get advanced knowledge　　イ To get a better job in the future
ウ To make friends　　エ To learn a foreign language

3 本文の内容に合っているものを，ア～エから1つ選び，符号で書きなさい。

ア Asami looks forward to studying abroad because she thinks it will help her grow in many ways.
イ Asami says that the students in Japan and China chose "To learn a foreign language" the most.
ウ The graph shows why the students in the three countries want to stay in their own countries.
エ The table shows that the students in America and China chose the same three countries.

4 次の英文は，中学生の陸（Riku）が，自動販売機（vending machine）について，英語の授業で発表したときのものです。1 ～ 6 の問いに答えなさい。

When you want to buy something to drink, you may go to a convenience store. Some of you may use a vending machine. Now there are so many vending machines in Japan that you can easily find them on the streets or in buildings. Actually, there are many interesting facts about vending machines. Today I will share some of them with you.

When and where did people make vending machines for the first time? Look at the picture. One article says that this is the oldest vending machine in the world. It was made by people in Egypt about 2,000 years ago. People at that time used it to buy water in front of a temple. When people put coins in it, they got water. The oldest remaining Japanese vending machine was made to sell stamps about 100 years ago. I am surprised that people have been using vending machines for such a long time.

Picture

Now vending machines sell many kinds of things such as drinks, tickets, fresh vegetables or even T-shirts. Then how many vending machines are there in Japan now? You know that traffic lights are also everywhere in Japan. Are there more traffic lights than vending machines? Actually, there are about two hundred thousand traffic lights in Japan now. How about vending machines? According to one article, the number is about four million! How about other countries? Which country has more vending machines, Japan or America? Look at this①. Actually, the number of vending machines in America is larger than the number of vending machines in Japan.

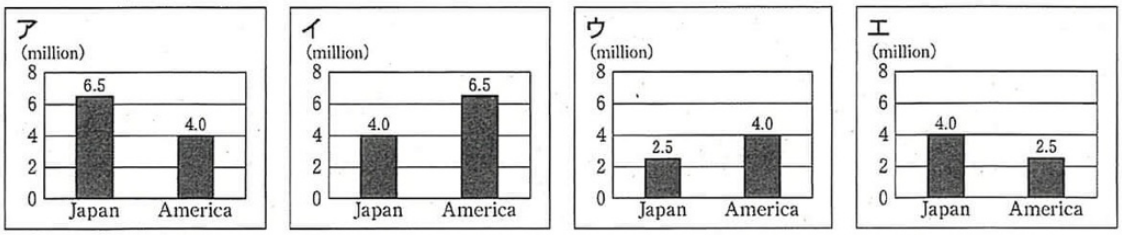

Why are there so many vending machines? I think they became common because you can get things very easily. When you go to a convenience store, you need to walk around to get things and wait in line before you buy them. How about online shopping? It is very convenient, but you need to wait for a few days to get the thing you want. But when you use vending machines, you just put coins into them and choose the thing you want, and then you can get it soon. That is one of the good points about vending machines.

Now I will tell you one more interesting thing about vending machines. Last week, my mother took me to a company. She works there to make snacks. In front of the company, there was a vending machine selling some snacks. My mother said, "You may think that selling snacks with a vending machine is not special, but look at the prices of these snacks." The prices of them were quite low. I asked her why. Then she answered, "When we made snacks before, some of them could not be sold because the shapes were not good. We had to throw away these snacks." I said, "Oh, that's a pity②!" I bought one of the snacks from the vending machine and ate it. I said, "Oh, this is delicious." My mother said, "That's right. So we tried to change the situation. One of the staff members thought that using vending machines may be a good idea to solve the problem. Then we began to sell these snacks with vending machines at lower prices. Now we don't have to throw away any snacks." I said, "That's great! It's also good for us because we can get snacks at any time at lower prices!" I think (③) because companies can sell things without throwing them away. Also, people can buy things without waiting until the shops are open.

Vending machines are very useful, so there will be other new ways to use them in the future. Why don't we think about them together?

(注) Egypt：エジプト　temple：神殿　coin：硬貨　remaining：現存する　stamp：切手
common：よくある　wait in line：並んで待つ　online shopping：インターネットショッピング convenient：便利な　price：価格　throw away：捨てる

ウ　this vending machine has more delicious snacks than a store

エ　this vending machine sells snacks that have a good shape

4　次の質問に対する答えを，本文の内容に即して，英語で書きなさい。

(1)　Was the oldest vending machine in the world made in Japan?

(2)　What did Riku do with his mother last week?

5　本文の内容に合っているものを，ア～カから２つ選び，符号で書きなさい。

ア　The oldest remaining vending machine in Japan was designed to sell tickets at a station.

イ　The oldest vending machine in the world was made to sell water in front of a temple.

ウ　Riku explained why convenience stores are becoming more common than vending machines.

エ　Riku gave his mother new ideas to use vending machines at her company.

オ　Riku thought that online shopping is always better than vending machines.

カ　Riku's mother said that the staff members in her company tried to stop throwing away snacks.

6　次の英文は，陸の発表を聞いて，ALT(外国語指導助手)が書いたコメントの一部です。(④　　)，(⑤　　)に入る最も適切な英語を，本文中から抜き出して１語ずつ書きなさい。ただし，(　　)内に示されている文字で書き始め，その文字も含めて答えること。

（間 30 秒）では，始めます。

Good afternoon, everyone! My name is Bill Brown. I am a staff member of this museum. Before you go around, I want to give you some information about our museum.

On the first floor, you can see many things about the history and nature of America. On the second floor, you can see things about dinosaurs. There is also a theater room, and you can watch a dinosaur movie. It is a short movie, but you can learn a lot about them. In addition, there is a gift shop on the same floor. You can buy dinosaur goods such as T-shirts, cups, and notebooks there.

Now, there are two rules when you walk around in this museum. First, do not eat and drink when you are walking around. Second, you must not touch anything that is shown in the museum. You may think you cannot take pictures, but it is OK.

Finally, this museum usually closes at 5 p.m. But now, it is open until 6 p.m. during summer, so you can walk around until that time. Now please enjoy our museum!
