3 次の英文は、美樹(Miki)が、日本の緑茶が、「粉末状の緑茶(powdered green tea)」と茶葉などの「その他の緑茶(the other types of green tea)」の形状で輸出されていることに興味をもち、英語の授業で発表したときのものです。1～3の問いに答えなさい。

Do you often drink green tea? I drink it every morning. Japanese people have enjoyed green tea for more than 1,000 years. Today I will talk about green tea that Japan exports. According to an article, Japan exports a large amount of green tea to other countries. When green tea is exported, it is classified into two groups, powdered green tea and the other types of green tea.

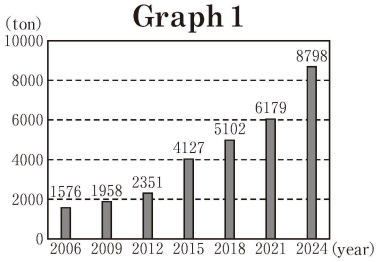

First, please look at Graph 1. This shows the amount of green tea that Japan exported from 2006 to 2024. In 2006, Japan exported about 1,600 tons of green tea. The amount kept increasing and it became more than 4,000 tons in 2015. Finally, in 2024, Japan exported about 8,800 tons!

Why did this happen? The article says that more people in the world have been interested in Japanese food. Also, there is one more important reason. Can you guess what it is? It is matcha. Matcha is a kind of powdered green tea. Matcha has become very popular in the world. Especially, many kinds of sweets like matcha parfait or matcha chocolate have a lot of fans. I love them, too. Look at Graph 2. This shows the changes in the amount of powdered green tea and the other types of green tea that Japan exported. Until 2021, powdered green tea was not exported as much as the other types of green tea. But after that, as matcha was getting more popular, Japan exported more powdered green tea than the other types of green tea.

Next, look at the table. These are the main countries that imported green tea from Japan in 2024. America imported more green tea than any other country. The amount that Canada imported is the smallest in this table. Germany imported one fourth of the amount America imported, and Malaysia is between Germany and Canada.

I'm proud of this traditional Japanese drink. I hope more people around the world will enjoy green tea and learn about this Japanese popular culture!

3 本文の内容に合っているものを、ア～エから1つ選び、符号で書きなさい。

ア Miki explains Japan has recently exported more powdered green tea because matcha has got popular in the world.

イ Miki hopes Japan will import more powdered green tea than the other types of green tea from abroad.

ウ Miki says Japanese people have been enjoying green tea with foreign people since around 1000.

エ Miki shows the amount of green tea Japan exported in 2024 is half of the amount in 2015.

4 次の英文は、中学３年生の健司（Kenji）が、最近印象に残ったできごとについて、英語の授業でスピーチをしたときのものです。１～７の問いに答えなさい。

Do you know a sport called Ground Golf? Ground Golf is a kind of golf. It is played in the park or on the playground, and the rules are not difficult to understand. So anyone can play it easily. Last week, I tried it for the first time at a Ground Golf event. At first, I thought it was just a small event, but it became a wonderful chance for me to learn an important thing through this sport. Today I'm going to talk about my experience there.

Last month, my mother showed me a website on her smartphone. She said, "There will be a Ground Golf event at Midori Park next month. It says anyone can join. How about joining and trying Ground Golf?" I didn't know much about its rules. I was not good at sports like soccer or basketball, and I usually stayed home on weekends. But I wanted to try something new, so I answered, "OK, I will."

On the day of the event, I went to Midori Park in the morning. I found that many elderly people were doing warm-up exercise. I was surprised that there were also many people of different generations. When all the team members met each other, one elderly woman smiled at me and said, "Hello. I'm Tanaka. We're in the same team. Let's have fun together!" I smiled and greeted her, too.

Ground Golf looked easy to play, so I didn't feel uneasy①. But when the game started and I hit my ball, it went in the wrong direction. Then everyone in my team gave me some advice. Because of that, I was able to hit the ball well. They always encouraged me, and when they hit the ball well, I also clapped for them. We smiled, laughed, and even told some jokes. At that moment, I realized that having fun together is important, just like winning the game.

After the game, we sat on the bench, drank tea, and talked with each other. "When did you start playing Ground Golf, Ms. Tanaka?" I asked. "About five years ago. Since then, it has become a part of my life," she answered. She continued, "When I worked, I met many people and had a lot of time to talk with them. But after I retired from my job, I had [ ② ] time to be at home. I read books or listened to the radio at home almost every day. One day, my best friend told me to play Ground Golf together for our health. Playing Ground Golf has become a good chance for me to go [ ③ ] again. I'm happy that it has given me a wonderful time to connect to many people. It helps me keep my health better both in body and mind!" Her words were full of energy. She said to me, "Do you know a big sports festival will be held next month? A lot of people from all over Japan will come to our prefecture to play many kinds of sports that anyone can enjoy. Ground Golf is one of them. I'm going to join the festival with my friends and neighbors. Some of them have never tried Ground Golf, so they are looking forward to playing it. You and your friends can also join us and enjoy together at the festival!"

This experience taught me one important thing. I learned we can connect with each other through sports even if our generations are different. Sports can give us a great opportunity to interact with people from different generations, and Ground Golf has connected me to younger and elderly people. If you are interested, why don't we join the sports festival next month together?

（注） Ground Golf：グラウンド・ゴルフ（ゴールにボールを入れるまでの打数を競うスポーツ）
